

Campus Sustainability

Welcome to UC San Diego!

Here at UC San Diego, sustainability plays an integral role in our education, research and campus operations. Sustainability covers a broad range of topics and people have different levels of knowledge about them. Share your experience and interests by taking this quick survey.

Five randomly selected participants will be chosen on September 22 to win a sustainability swag bag valued at up to $50!

Green Residence Program

Learn how you can conserve resources and save money by exploring tips to better understand the environmental impacts of particular behaviors and to learn how you can implement more sustainable best practices into your daily routine.

The Green Residence Self-Assessment consists of several behaviors that allow you to evaluate your current practices and gives you a score automatically upon completion.

Certify Your Workspace

The UC San Diego Utilities & Sustainability Programs Office offers a free assessment program for classrooms, labs and offices. Each program aims to increase sustainability awareness and promote resource conservation throughout the campus community.

The certification programs assess the current behaviors within a space and makes recommendations for ways to implement better sustainable practices. Assessed spaces can earn one of five certification levels. Review all of the programs and the simple steps to getting your space certified.
